

My current research is in the photovoltaic area. We are exploring ways of fabricating printed single crystal solar cells. This work is in conjunction with John Roger's group. In these cells the high temperature processing is preformed on the host wafer and then transferred onto a secondary support. This allows for the incorporation of a flexible polymer as the secondary support.